THE RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. John P. Branch, president of the Merchants National Bank, the oldest inancier in the city, endorsed all Mr. Mr. Cabell had said. His remarks were brief. He concluded by offering the following resolutions:

Whereas, on February 24, 1900, at a meeting, certian citizens of Richmond, interested in the removal of the post-office and other governmental departments from their present location on Main Street, indulged in criticisms of Senator Thomas S. Now, therefore, be it resolved by this meeting:

First, That the thanks of the city are richly due to Senator Thomas S.
Martin for his wise, energetic and untiring efforts to secure the necessary legislation by Congress for the acquisition of the Shafer property at its waluation in the recent court proceedings:

and that he mangement of the matter is deserving of the highest praise, and that he may rest assured that his labors are most highly appreciated by the representatives of the principal business interests of the community, and finally, that while after his spirited communication, appearing in the Times-Dispatch of this morning, he needs no vindication at the hundz of anyone, yet it is deemed that this public expression of approval is all allke due to him and to the interests he has so ably sought to subserve.

Second, Resolved, that this meeting earnestly requests Hon. John Lamb, member of Congress of this district to support by every means in his power, the measure which has just passed the Senate providing for the acquisition of the Shafer property at the valuation fixed in the recent condemnation proceedings.

MR MOORE APPROVES.

Mr. J. B. Moore seconded the resolutions in a plain, practical business talk. He said that probably 75 per cent. of the postoffice patronage came from the immediate vicinity of the present site of the Federal building.

The resolutions offered by Mr. Branch of the Praise to "the junior Senator from Virginia." Mr. L. Z. Morris, a former 'president of the Chamber of Commerce, did not like this. "The man who has done it all is Thomas S, Martin, Let's call him by name," said Mr. Morris.

one. There is no law to prohibit your seeing a newspaper, and it is impossible to keep you from reading of this case, but, gentlemen, I wish to caution you to form no opinions about this matter from what you may read.

"The evidence will be submitted to you in this room, and the court at the proper time will construe the law for you. Let this be sufficient, and form your conclusions accordingly."

KNEW NO NAMES.

Commonwealth's-Attorney Richardson stated that he had told no one that he was up against a brick wall or that two members of the jury are interested in the acquittal of the accused. He admitted, after court had adjourned, that he had been informed that certain jurymen were interested in having King discharged. He positively did not know the names of these men and would not divulge the identity of his informant. Barring one or two instances, the hearing yesterday was practically devoid of interesting Quedquire. Certainly this was true so far as the evidence was concerned, even thoush John M. King, the defendant, was on the stand for a good pertion of the diy.

Probably the most startling disclosure in the way of testimony came when Commonwealth's-Attorney Richardson showed that June 15, 1002, the day King is alleged to have given to D. O'Sullyan a note for 150 in return for a loan a few days previously of this amount, was on Sunday.

POSITIVE OF THE DAFS.

The defendant was on the stand. The proseculing attorney fired question after question at him regarding the most, and fully a half-dozen times Mr. King said that he was laid on the note, and fully a half-dozen times Mr. King said that he was laid on the note, and fully a half-dozen times Mr. King said that he was laid on the note, and fully a half-dozen times Mr. King said that he was said on the note, and fully a half-dozen times for the case and the specific properties and the note. Particular stress was laid on the note, and fully a half-dozen times of the case and the specific properties and the note. Particular stres ter question at him regarding the money and the note. Particular stress was laid on the note, and fully a half-dozen times Mr. King said that he was positive the paper had been given on the 15th of June.

"Are you equally as positive about this date as you are of others," asked Mr. Richardson.

"Most assuredly, sir," replied Mr. King.

terday, interest in the trial of King was not lacking. From the time the case was resumed yesterday morning until the adjournment last night every available sent in the Hustings Court was co-cupied, while the closest attention was given to every word of evidence.

The fact that the defendant himself was on the stand seems to have caused double interest in the trial. While he was being cross-examined yesterday every neck was craned in the hope of catching each word that was said.

Mr. King stood the test very well indeed. He was always rendy with an answer to the questions of Mr. Richardson, and he spoke in a loud tone and straightforward manner, never once boing runtied in the least.

MISTRIAL PROBABLE.

As the case draws to a close—it will end to-day—there is much speculation as to the final outcome—the verdict of the jury. Mr. King has a number of friends, who are quite sanguine and claim to expect his acquittal.

While there are those who do not entertain such a wiew of the case, it is generally conceded that the defendant will not be convicted. A mistrial—a hung jury—will doubtless be the outcome, and many are inclined to make wagers to this effect.

It is argued that the Commonwealth has hung Jury—will doubtless be the obtowned and many are inclined to make wagers to this effect, '

It is argued that the Commonwealth has not made out a strong case against King much of the Police Court evidence having been ruled out. But when the theory have already formed a pretty good idea about the innocence or guilt of the accused, and establishment of this fact or the failure to establish that fact will not affect them one way or the other. In a word, it is held that members of the jury will never consent to an acquittal, while they would be equally as slow to find a verdict of guilty. They are not satisfied, and will not be, as a consequence of which a mistrial will result.

STUBBORN CONTEST.

The trial yesterday was characterized by a stuborn contest between the interested attorneys over the admission of evidence.

When on the stand yesterday, Mr. Richardson asked the defendant if he had not received $100 on a certain occasion to vote and use his influence in a certain direction. This was never answered, for both Messrs. Carter and Meredith objected, as a result of which the jury was retired, and the point argued at some length by the attorneys.

O'Bullivan, He did not succeed, how

When King returned from New York be called on Mr. O'Sullivan and told mim that he had been unsuccessful in getting expected money. He had a deal on by which he thought to make a sum, and asked that he be indulged in for a short time. He gave a thirty day promissory note this amount, this being, he swore, on June 15th, making the payment due on July 15th, and the payment due on July 15th, and the payment due on July 15th, the first of the payment on the note and gave another for the balance. This was a ninety-day note and was discounted by Mr. O'Sullivan, E. A. Saunders making the cash payment.

Mr. King concluded by denying positively that he had ever accepted any money from either Gasser, Gude or Weinbrun. He was excused about 4 c'clock. City Engineer Cutshaw was next called, He was questioned about street contracts, and told of how they were issued. He said that while King was a member of the Street Committee certain payment centracts had been held up, but that so far as he saw there was nothing irregular bout it, Each time King had asked him if the bids were not higher than usual.

There was nothing about his manner to head Colonol Cutshaw to believe that anything was wrong or that any crooked work was going on. He said that since then he had seen no reason for changing four different statements and didn't seem to believe any of them," said the witness. "Then they adjourned to go to dinner and I was excused."

Following Mr. O'Sullivan, Frank Miller, son of a Main Street merchant, was called. He said that in the place of business of his father Mr. Gasser made his

"Do you know of any telephone con-versation between them?"
"No, sir."

Mr. Miller was referring solely to dates such as was heard in the Police Court.

SCORED A POINT.

While the establishment that June 15th was Sunday by Mr. Richardson created some surprise and is generally regarded as a victory for the State, the failure of the Commonwealth to establish by a witness placed on the stand in robutal that Mr. Gasser and Mr. King held conferences between March and July of last year was the strongest point scored by the defendant during the day.

When court convened yesterday morning Mr. King was called to the stand by the defendant's attorneys, the State having closed the afternoon previous. He was cool, possessed and displayed no nervousness or apparent "stage fright." He walked deliberately from his chair in the reur of his attorneys, behind the railing, to the seat set aside for witnesses, stopping at the desk of the clerk to be sworn. He took the usual oath, and on the stand was treated just as a witness in the case, both sides disregarding that he was the defendant and accused.

Mr. Carter asked the witness to tell all he knew of the case and the specific charge against him. He said that last May he was contemplating marriage, and was in scarch of a suitable house in which to live. He called on J. Thompson Brown & Co. in regard to a certain dwelling in Jefferson Ward, which he had noticed being creeted. The rent he thought was too high, and he entered into an agreement to purchase the place, making a part cash payment and the replied Mr. Branch, "I accept your amendment with the greatest of pleasure.

The amendment was agreed to without objection.

Mr. Joseph Bryan said that he had reliable information that four-fifths of the postoffice business came from the territory east of Fifth and south of Broad.

The resolutions were adopted with a whoop.

"Do I hear objection?" asked Chairman Purcell. He paused for a reply.

"Ther was none.

"The resolutions are unanimously adopted." said the chairman. (Cheers.)

Judge Ingram has said that he will not limit the lawyers in their arguments, and each of the three will be given ample time in which to discuss the case and the evidence. The speeches promise to be one of the features of the trial.

When the attorneys are completed Judgo Ingram will deliver his charge to the jury and they will retire to try to make up a verdict.
